First line experience in the treatment of elderly patients with relapsed/refractory acute myeloid leukemia with FLAG-IDA in a single center. The prognosis of relapsed/refractory acute myeloid leukemia (R/R AML) in elderly patients is very poor. It is known that FLAG-IDA has a better toxicity profile and is effective in elderly patients with relapsed AML. The purpose of this study was to assess the activity and toxicity of FLAG-IDA as first line treatment in elderly patients with R/R AML. Forty-two patients were enrolled and were treated with FLAG-IDA. In total, 22 patients were given induction treatment followed by consolidation with FLAG-IDA and 20 were given consolidation treatment only. Twenty-five patients received low dose cytarabine (Ara-C) followed by induction and consolidation treatment with FLAG-IDA. Out of 38 evaluable patients, there were 23 patients (60.5%) in complete remission (CR) and four (10.5%) had partial remission. Median duration of CR was 14.5 months. Of the total 42 patients, four (9.5%) patients have progressed disease after achieving CR. Induction treatment was completed in 92.9% of the patients and 65% of them underwent consolidation treatment. Hematologic toxicity was significant but it was well controlled. Non-hematologic toxicity and serious adverse effects such as bacterial infection were not significant. FLAG-IDA is a well-tolerated and effective salvage treatment for elderly patients with R/R AML.”
